

Substantial published evidence from human, animal, and mechanistic studies at the time of the IARC evaluation indicated that glyphosate could be classified as a probable carcinogen.

| Level 1 Carcinogenic | Level 2A Probably carcinogenic | Level 2B Possibly carcinogenic | Level 3 Not enough data | Level 4 Probably not Carcinogenic |
|-------------------------|--|--|----------------------------|---|
| Plutonium | Red Meat | Electromagnetic radiation emitted from cell phones | Tea | Caprolactam |
| Alcoholic beverages | Glyphosate | Pickled vegetables | Fluorescent lighting | |
| Processed meat | Emissions from high temperature frying | Gasoline engine exhaust | Polyethelene | |
| Acrylamide | Working as a hair dresser | Progestin-only contraceptives | Cantharidin | |